

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE

As provided in the Illinois Constitution, the Office of the Secretary of State's main functions are to maintain official state records and the state seal. However, many additional responsibilities have been added over the years, making the office one of the largest and most diverse of any of its counterparts nationwide.

As the second-largest state constitutional office, the Secretary of State's office is visited by more Illinois residents than any other in state government. The office generates approximately $2 billion in annual revenue with more than $480 million a year designated for state highway construction funds. The office manages one of the largest computer databases in Illinois, keeping track of approximately 9 million drivers, 11 million registered vehicles, 467,000 corporations and 173,000 securities salespersons. The office also is an important resource for educating the public about traffic and school bus safety, drunk driving, securities fraud, literacy and organ/tissue donation.

Secretary of State Jesse White has worked diligently to enhance customer service, promote safety on Illinois roads and strengthen the integrity of the office. Technology upgrades in the office have allowed the online renewal of driver's licenses and license plates as well as a variety of business transactions. White's efforts to restore public trust in the office include establishing a code of conduct for employees, setting strict fundraising policies that prohibit employee contributions, giving his Inspector General subpoena powers, and increasing penalties for offering or accepting bribes.

Secretary White has initiated numerous traffic safety initiatives that have made Illinois a national model and led to fewer fatalities on Illinois roadways. In 2009, White chaired the Distracted Driving Task Force, which led to the passage of laws banning texting while driving and using cellphones in school and construction zones. On Jan. 1, 2014, Secretary White's initiative to crack down on the issuance of court supervision for drivers involved in fatal crashes took effect. The new law will ensure that these drivers are ineligible for court supervision unless they have maintained a clean driving history.

Secretary of State Jesse White announced an upgrade to his office's Breath Alcohol Ignition Interlock Device (BAIID) program for DUI offenders in July 2013, requiring an in-car camera to accompany every BAIID installation.

In his continued efforts to combat drunk driving, Secretary White has strengthened Illinois' innovative Breath Alcohol Ignition Interlock Device (BAIID) program. In January 2009, the program was expanded to require all first-time DUI offenders to install a BAIID in their vehicles. The program is credited with a 24 percent decline in drunk-driving deaths in the state. A program upgrade effective in July 2013 requires an in-car camera to accompany every BAIID installation. The new law provides additional accountability to a program that has received national acclaim as a model in the fight against drunk driving.

Two measures spearheaded by Secretary White to enhance Illinois' heralded Graduated Driver Licensing (GDL) program for young drivers also take effect in 2014. Kelsey's Law prohibits the issuance of a driver's license to a person under age 18 who has an unresolved traffic citation. Effective July 1, persons aged 18-20 applying for a driver's license for the first time must complete a six-hour adult driver training and education course before obtaining a license. Previously, at age 18 a teen could obtain a license without any driver education whatsoever. Since enhanced GDL provisions were implemented in 2008, including extending the instruction permit phase to nine months and establishing additional passenger and nighttime driving restrictions, teen driving deaths in Illinois have fallen by 60 percent.

Secretary White presented students and teachers from Glenbrook South High School with the 2013 Teen Driver Safety Award for their innovative driver education program, which includes integrating video cameras in driver training, conducting parking lot safety belt checks and a pledge drive to discourage texting while driving.

The Secretary of State's confidential Emergency Contact Database allows individuals to enter their emergency contact information on the Secretary of State's website. In an emergency, law enforcement personnel can access the database through LEADS (Law Enforcement Agencies Data System). More than 200,000 people have registered on the database since its creation in August 2009.

The Secretary of State's Organ/Tissue Donor Program continues to be a model for other states. Secretary White's First-Person Consent legislation, effective in January 2006, made a person's decision to be a donor legally binding. Family consent is no longer required. The state's donor registry currently tops 5.4 million potential donors.

Secretary White's office has overhauled the state's Commercial Driver's License program, including requiring CDL holders who move to Illinois to pass written and road exams in order to be licensed in this state. The program has been credited as one of the best in the nation by the U.S. Department of Transportation. Secretary White's efforts to reduce the misuse and abuse of disability license plates and parking placards has won praise from law enforcement agencies and the disability community. He also initiated a law that increases fines and penalties for illegally parking in spaces reserved for persons with disabilities.

Among his other duties, Secretary White serves as State Librarian, overseeing the Illinois State Library and the state's literacy program. As State Archivist, White has oversight of the Illinois State Archives and its seven regional depositories at universities statewide.

Informal hearings involve general driver's license matters and legal challenges to license revocations and suspensions. Informal hearing officers also provide consultations for DUI offenders requiring a formal hearing.

Safety Responsibility hearings determine probable fault for motorists involved in crashes.
